

Sample product: reed diffuser 200 ml · 5 reed sticks sample

"We have a cat. Is this OK to use at home?"

Let your brand answer that on the product page.

"Is the diffuser scent itself harmless to a cat's health?"

Real question posted on a diffuser product Q&A (2023, translated from Korean)

"I'd like a diffuser at home, but we have a cat and I wonder if it could be bad for her."

Real question posted on a diffuser product Q&A (2021, translated from Korean)

A pre-diagnosis sorts the answer into three boxes sample · based on public veterinary sources

✓ Conditions you can state

- Place it where pets cannot reach or knock it over
- Use it in a room pets do not enter, or at least leave the door open so they can leave
- Use for short periods, not continuously; ventilate afterwards
- Wipe spills right away; keep the liquid off fur and skin

ASPCA 2022 · Merck Veterinary Manual 2025 · Pet Poison Helpline 2019

! Cases where it is better not to use it

- Homes with birds
- Pets with breathing problems (respiratory disease)
- Putting the liquid into an ultrasonic or spray device (droplets can settle on fur)

ASPCA 2022 · Merck Veterinary Manual 2025

? What we need your files to confirm

- Fragrance composition (IFRA certificate, ingredient list); whether essential oils are included, and which
- Concentration of the liquid and recommended number of sticks
- Conditions that change by scent

These can only be answered with the product's own documents

Customer-service reply draft sample

If you live with pets, please use it this way. Place it high, where your pet cannot reach or tip it over, and in a room your pet does not enter, or at least leave the door open so they can leave. Use it for short periods rather than all day, and air the room afterwards. If you live with birds, or your pet has breathing problems, we recommend not using it. If the liquid spills or your pet licks it and seems different from usual, take the product with you and contact your vet.

No "it's fine" or "don't worry". Only the conditions to keep and the cases to avoid, stated plainly.

Product-page card sample

If you live with pets

1. Place it high, out of reach
2. In a room they don't enter, or leave the door open
3. Short use, then ventilate
4. Not for homes with birds or pets with breathing problems

Brand-commissioned review record · not a certification · conditions and sources via QR

In the full review we take your fragrance composition files, refill the three boxes for your actual product, and our research lead signs off. You receive: a private report with the evidence table, the customer-service reply, the product-page card, and a public QR record if you choose to publish. Founding partners: the pre-diagnosis is free.

This page was made with a fictional sample product. The conditions above are general guidance from public veterinary sources (ASPCA "The Essentials of Essential Oils Around Pets" 2022; Merck Veterinary Manual "Toxicoses From Essential Oils in Animals" 2025; Pet Poison Helpline "Essential Oils" veterinary education material 2019) and are not the result of testing any specific product. A real product's outcome depends on its documents: conditions, a recommendation not to use, or a hold for more data are all possible. This is not a regulatory certification or a safety approval. Customer questions are quoted from public marketplace Q&A with brand names removed.